BIOGRAPHIES, CONTINUED FROM PAGE 280.

A. H. MOORE, M.D.—Judge Moore was the sixth man in the early settlement of Mitchell County. Five had preceded him and were settlers of the county when he arrived at Osage, in 1853. He was prominent in the early settlement of the City of Osage, and by him the first land on which the city is located was bought from the Government and platted. He named it "Cora." He has given largely to the building of churches and the building up of church societies, and contributed as largely to the growth, prosperity and enterprise of Osage, according to his means, as any man; no one has done more than he, and the high esteem in which he is held by his large circle of acquaintances is as well merited as it is freely given.

Doctor Moore was born at Hickory, Washington County, Pennsylvania, December 8, 1818. His father was a farmer, and on a farm he spent his early life. He attended Jefferson College, in Pennsylvania, and in 1846 graduated and received a diploma at the Indiana Medical College, and at once entered upon the practice of his profession at Mottville, St. Joseph County, Michigan, where he continued to reside until 1853, when he moved to Osage, where he at present resides. He has twice been elected county judge of Mitchell County, and held various minor offices.

April 22, 1846, he was married to Miss Sarah E. Nixon, of Mottville, Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Moore have had five children, three of whom, Cora L., Francis M. and Alice, are living. Francis is studying medicine at the Iowa State University.

Honorable D. C. CLOUD.—Prominent in the citizenship of Muscatine and the state, is the Hon. D. C. Cloud, Iowa's first Attorney General, a political writer of note, and nestor of the Muscatine County bar. Mr. Cloud was born in Champaign County, Ohio, in 1817. His friends relate of his often contrasting the educational wants of his youth with the superior facilities enjoyed by the school children of Muscatine City and County. He attended school but three months in the year during his childhood, and after his twelfth year saw but six months in a school room. At an early age he began his apprenticeship to the carpenter's trade, which he mastered, and in 1839 moved with his bride to Iowa, selecting Muscatine, then scarcely more than a boat landing, called Bloomington, for his adopted home. In one of these early years in Iowa, he was engaged in work upon a dwelling for Judge S. C. Hastings (now of California), and took his pay in law books. Without tutor or instruction of any kind, he pursued his law studies during his evening hours at home, and was admitted to the bar in 1846. In 1849 he was elected Prosecuting Attorney for his county, and in 1853, when the office was created, he was elected Attorney General of the state. He was re-elected in 1854 for the regular term of two years, and it may be specially noted that he was the only candidate on the Democratic ticket, having an opponent on the opposite ticket who was elected—Governor Grimes, the Whig candidate, coming in with a majority of nearly 1,900, and Mr. Cloud by a majority of 2,100.

On retiring from office in 1856, Mr. Cloud was chosen to the Legislature, where he served, in the House, as chairman of both the committee of Ways and Means, and of Railroads. In his later retirement he has become known to the country as the author of "MONOPOLIES AND THE PEOPLE," a large duodecimo volume, which has received general and flattering attention from the eastern and western press for its full, learned and vigorous treatment of the grave questions embraced under this title.

We have spoken of Mr. Cloud's authorship and political life, but the courts of the state are the scenes of his best labors, and where he will be best remembered. Here he has won his greatest triumph, and if he has one title better deserved than another, it is that of "the busiest lawyer in Iowa."

In politics Mr. Cloud is a Republican, but he supported Mr. Greeley's candidacy in 1872, and he continues to act with the liberal Republican party.

Our subject may be regarded as one of the distinguished self-made men of the country—a notable illustration of what resolution and industry, unaided by the arts or graces of the school, may achieve in the training of the intellect for the severest and highest duties of life.

C. H. LANE, of Red Oak, was born in Rockingham County, New Hampshire, in 1834. When about twenty years of age he went to Boston, where he was engaged in a wholesale grocery house until 1857, when he came to Iowa, and settled in Red Oak in the Fall of that year—there not being as yet a single house on the town site. Two years later he opened the first store in the place, hauling his goods from Glenwood landing, a distance of forty miles, with teams.

With the exception of one year spent in the mountains of Colorado, Mr. Lane has been engaged in commercial business in Red Oak to the present time.

In December, 1873, the First National Bank of Red Oak was organized, and Mr. Lane was chosen president, which position he now holds.

WILLIAM W. BLACKMAN, M.D.—The subject of this sketch was born at Bridgewater, New York, January 7, 1819; had common school advantages, and also received a partial academic course. He taught school Winters, and worked on a farm Summers after the age of seventeen, and gave his wages to his father until he arrived at the age of twenty-one, when he commenced the study of medicine with Dr. King, of Unadilla Forks, Otsego County New York, and graduated at the Medical Department of the New York State University, in 1848, and April 24, of the same year, was married to Miss Lucy A. Brewer, of Unadilla Forks. He moved to Rock County, Wisconsin, and shortly after across into Dane County, at Stoughton, and continued a large practice in Rock and Dane Counties for nineteen years. He was three times elected a member of the Wisconsin Legislature and participated in the sessions of 1859, 1860 and 1864, and took part in the acceptance of the Wisconsin Revised Statutes.

In the year of 1866, he moved to West Mitchell and entered into the drug and general grocery trade, which he largely carries on. He was elected representative to the Iowa Legislature for the years 1872–3, and took part in the revision of the Iowa Statutes.

He has been exceedingly successful in his practice and in his business, and has a large circle of friends and acquaintances, among which he is justly popular, and has become possessed of such a competence as to enjoy pleasure and travel, which with his family, consisting of his wife and one daughter, he wisely and prudently indulgesin.

ALFRED HEBARD was born in Windom, Connecticut, in 1811, and came to Iowa about thirty-five years ago, and settled near Burlington, where he was engaged in farming. He was for several years a member of the territorial legislature from Des Moines County, was engaged in the survey of the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad, and was one of the founders of the Town of Red Oak, the county seat of Montgomery County, where he now resides.

Honorable L. W. TUBBS, a prominent citizen and early settler of Mills County, is a native of New York, having been born in Binghamton in that state, in 1826.

His parents removed at an early day to Western Reserve, Ohio, where he resided until 1849, when, upon the breaking out of the gold excitement in California, he crossed the Plains to that state.

There he remained until 1855, took an active part in the organization and admission of California into the Union, and was elected a member of the first State Legislature from Bute County. Returning from that state he settled in Mills County, Iowa. He was elected County Judge in 1859, and held that position two years.

During the civil war he was a staunch supporter of the Government, and held commissions from the Governor. Since then he has devoted his time to farming and stock raising. He was one of the originators of the Mills County Agricultural Society, in which he takes an active interest.

Judge Tubbs has been reporter to the Patent Office at Washington, for Mills County, for over sixteen years.

He is the owner of some five thousand acres of land in the county; his home farm at Emerson, where he resides, containing thirty-five hundred acres.

PEOPLE'S ENCYCLOPEDIA.

A copy of the above work, published by the People's Encyclopedia Company (our neighbors in the Lakeside Building) has been in our office for several months past. It has been of such value to us, that we desire thus publicly to bear testimony to its excellence Hours of valuable time have been saved, as it is complete and from its condensed style a minute's time suffices to obtain all necessary information on any subject, or of any term or proper name.

THE PEOPLE'S ENCYCLOPEDIA is a compilation by L. Colange, LL.D., Editor of Zell's Encyclopedia, and contains in one volume the essence of that voluminous and costly work.

We are informed by the Publishers that the complete work will be sold at the low price of $6.75, which places it within reach of all, and which should place it in the possession of every family.

The following is from their prospectus:

"THE PEOPLE'S ENCYCLOPEDIA, combined and abbreviated in one volume of over 1,000 pages and 700 illustrations, pronouncing every term and proper name.

"For information and general usefulness no book compares with an Encyclopedia, but until the publication of this work, they have been issued in so many volumes, and sold at such enormous prices, that but few have been able to purchase. They also dwell at such length, that too much time is required for ordinary use. The object of this volume has been to condense all that is found in other works of this kind, and tell, in as few words as possible, just what people want to know, omitting details, dry figures and statistics, in most of which few people take interest.

"The following subjects are embraced: Agriculture, Anatomy, Architecture, Archæology, Astronomy, Banking, Biblical Science, Biography, Botany, Chemistry, Commerce, Conchology, Cosmography, Ethics, The Fine Arts, Geography, Geology, Grammar, Heraldry, History, Hydraulics, Hygiene, Jurisprudence, Legislation, Literature, Logic, Mathematics, Mechanical Arts, Metallurgy, Metaphysics, Mineralogy, Military Science, Mining Medicine, Mythology, Natural History and Philosophy, Navigation and Nautical Affairs, Physics, Physiology, Political Economy, Rhetoric, Theology, Zoology, Etc., Etc."

MILLS & COMPANY.

Publishers, Printers, Blank Book Manufacturers, Engravers, Lithographers, Stereotypers, Booksellers, Stationers and Music Dealers,

DES MOINES, IOWA.

The establishment of the above named firm is the most extensive one in Iowa, and taken as a whole is the largest and most complete one of the kind in the entire West; and as a representative concern and managed by representative men, we deem it worthy of the space herein given for a sketch of its HISTORY.

The house was organized in 1856 by F. M. Mills and his brother N. W. Mills, who came from Indiana, at the ages of twenty-five and twenty-two respectively, with slender means but with willing hands and brave hearts, to try their fortunes and "grow up with the country." J. W. Mills, an older brother, was also a partner in the business, but did not remove to Iowa, and afterward disposed of his interest to the younger. The business at first was that of printing alone, both of the brothers having commenced learning that trade at the early age of fourteen, but after a few years the first quit it reluctantly for the field of trade, while the younger studied law, was admitted to the bar, but on coming to Des Moines and seeing their opportunity, they abandoned their whilom pursuits for their first love; so the firm of N. W. Mills & Co. was established with the younger in active charge of the work. The next year it was decided to add a book bindery, and taking a partner (J. S. Carter) in that department a double firm was organized, the printing firm changed to Mills Brothers, and the bindery to Mills & Co. This arrangement continued until after the death of N. W. Mills, who died at Corinth, Miss., Oct. 11, 1862, of wounds received in the hard fought battle at that place, Oct. 3d and 4th, having risen from Second Lieutenant of his Company to command of his regiment, the justly celebrated Second Iowa Infantry, the "Heroes of Fort Donelson." Mr. Carter retiring in 1863, the whole business was merged into one under the firm name of Mills & Co. In the year 1864 the interest of the estate of N. W. Mills was withdrawn, and Mr. J. M. Ross, of Cincinnati, became a partner, and in December, 1866, J. W. Mills rejoined the firm and moved to Des Moines. At this time the firm purchased of Hon. F. W. Palmer, the Iowa State Register for the sum of twenty thousand dollars. The purchase included all the types, presses, furniture and fixtures of that large establishment, as well as the newspaper, its good will, etc., etc. On December 6, 1870, just four years from the date of the purchase they sold the newspaper, with its dress and the press upon which it was printed, to the Messrs. Clarkson Bros., for the sum of thirty thousand dollars, being about twenty-two thousand dollars for the good will alone; more than was paid by Mills & Co. for the entirety when they purchased it. During these four years the paper was twice enlarged, many new features added, large expenditures for telegraphic facilities and correspondence were made. Among the distinctive features introduced by them was the "Tour of Iowa Counties," in which nearly every county in the State was visited, its history, description, resources, and advantages fully written up and published. The benefit of this publication to the State cannot be too highly estimated. Thousands upon thousands of copies of the papers containing these sketches were circulated in the East and in Europe, and have been the means of bringing many thousands of good citizens to the State. Northwestern Iowa was settled up almost within a single year as the result of a series of sketches entitled "Free Homes in Iowa," published in the paper. In a financial point of view the firm would have done well to have retained The Register, after having added to its value, but the other departments had grown upon their hands, and the arduous labors of running a large daily and weekly paper requiring so much night work and such close attention, in addition to the management of the other branches of their business, was beginning to tell upon them, and they resigned its charge into the hands of those whom they knew would not allow it to deteriorate, but would work as earnestly for its improvement and the advancement of the material interests of the State.

Soon after the removal of the Capital to Des Moines, F. M. Mills was elected State Binder, holding that responsible position four successive terms; thereafter, upon the purchase of The State Register, was elected State Printer, the firm doing the State printing for themselves and others for five years. For several years, also, they done under contract, the State printing and binding of the State of Nebraska. They have, also, during their existence as a firm, carried on several other important publishing enterprises. The Iowa Farmer was successfully established by them in 1859, in connection with General Wm. Duane Wilson, but was afterward sold to The Pioneer Farmer. After several changes it found its way back to them under the name of the Iowa Homestead, and after six years of their management, the good will alone of it was sold for six thousand dollars. They also established and published for ten years the Iowa School Journal. In 1867, having already entered the field of Law Publishing, they established the Western Jurist, a law magazine. It was at first issued bi-monthly, but afterward was changed to a monthly. It has continued to grow in worth and importance until almost every lawyer in the State and many of the most prominent in other states are upon its subscription list. Its merit is attested by the fact that the names that first went on the list still remain there, scarcely a lawyer after having received it a single year has discontinued his subscription. It is now as large, as well gotten up and as ably edited as any law periodical in the country.

During the war, forty-seven men were enlisted from their establishment; at one time entirely clearing out the printing office, and reducing the force in the other departments to a corporal's guard. The number of hands now employed ranges from fifty to one hundred. The different men that have worked for them, would form a full regiment if not a brigade, while many of their present force learned their trades in their employ, and some have grown gray in the service. Nearly a million dollars in money have been paid out for wages, since the founding of the house; the pay-roll a good part of the time running from two to three hundred dollars per day; most of their work being high priced labor—notably in the Lithographic and Stereotype Departments, where five and six dollars per day are paid to some of the hands.

From the small concern started in 1856, the business has grown into an extremely heavy one with many departments, all however, dovetailing together in one harmonious whole. These departments have been added from time to time, as the business of the country demanded, or in truth, the requirements of the country have been anticipated. Mills & Co., have in their business enterprises all the time been

PIONEERS.

Their Job Printing business begun in 1856, was the first exclusive Job office west of the Mississippi river towns in the State. Their Bindery added in 1857, was the first and only one for sometime between the Mississippi towns and the Pacific Coast. Their Engraving and Lithographing Department added in 1868, was the first and only one between Chicago and San Francisco, except at St. Louis until within a year or two. This department has grown into such proportions, that steam presses of the most approved patterns have been introduced. Two years ago feeling that their capacity for Book Printing was somewhat abridged, the firm added a first-class Stereotype Foundry, and launched out as regular Book Publishers. This is now the only Stereotype Foundry, as well as the first, between the Lakes and the Pacific, except at St. Louis.

A feature of this house in 1860, was the printing and manufacture of Flags. Over $1,000 worth of small flags were printed by them, principally for wide-awake clubs. This was a large business in that line at that time, and taxed their facilities to the utmost, but they are now preparing to manufacture Banners and Flags of all kinds and sizes, from the smallest size to the largest bunting for the and orders to fifty times the amount of their 1860 business will be promptly met. Everybody will celebrate the hundredth year of our nation's existence, and Mills & Co. will celebrate the twentieth year of their business in Des Moines (which is one-fifth as old as the government), by furnishing flags, etc., for the rest of the patriotic citizens to celebrate with. As it will also be Presidential year, flags for the different parties with appropriate mottos, etc., will be supplied. The large facilities of the establishment will enable them to fill all orders, as low as any other concern.

When the firm first commenced business they occupied a small room on second street, below the Valley Railroad. This was then in the center of business. The next year they removed to the building on Court Avenue, next door to Ainsworth and Bonbright's present store, in 1858 to the second and third stories of Allen's Bank building, and in 1859 to their own building, erected especially for their business, on Court Avenue, between Second and Third streets. This commodious brick building with three stories and basement, they supposed was large enough for any demand that could be made upon their facilities; the basement was occupied as a press room, the first floor was filled with a complete stock of books and stationery, the second floor was occupied by the printing office, and the third by the bindery. There being no music store in the place, and to supply their calls therefor, they added sheet music, and as a natural sequence were compelled to add musical instruments. This department soon compelled them to seek separate quarters for it, in fact the whole business so grew that it soon became manifest more extended accommodations must be had. This was compulsory after the acquisition of the Register in 1866, so the site of the old Central Presbyterian Church, on Fourth street was secured, and in 1867, now occupied by the firm was erected. The location is most desirable, being central, almost midway between the two principal hotels, the Savery and Aborn, opposite the new Opera House, in the immediate vicinity of the Banks, and prominent business houses, Post Office, and Court Houses, and on the thoroughfare from the depots.

The house was built after plans by W. W. Boyington, of Chicago, containing every feature that the experience of the firm, and the taste of the architect could dictate, and beside being substantial and well adapted for its purposes, is handsome enough to grace the streets of any city, being perhaps the most imposing, as it is the highest, building in the city devoted to business purposes, and comprising with the basement five full working stories. The size is forty-four feet front by eighty feet deep, with boiler house and a detached ware house in the rear. The floors are thrown into double rooms, supported by heavy iron columns in the center. The whole building heated by steam and lighted by gas.

THE BASEMENT

is ten feet in hight, and is occupied by a twenty-horse power engine of best construction, and a line of steam presses, consisting of Adams book, Hoe's large cylinder book and job presses, Potter's newspaper press, with a line of job presses of several different kinds; also the machinery for running the steam elevator, which leads from the basement to the top floor, with doors opening into each story. Each press stands upon a foundation built to receive it, and they are kept perfectly lined up, so that they work true and with little friction. The press-work of the printing department is done here, and a busy place it is. Here is also printed on the auxilliary plan the large list of newspapers—nearly one hundred different papers—of the State Printing Company. A portion of this floor is set off for the storage of stock, in which is piled large supplies of book and news paper, blank book paper, card board and other printers' stock. In the rear of the building a large underground vault, throroughly fire-proof, has been erected this season, to supplement the smaller vaults in the building, for the storage of their own large stock of valuable stereotype plates and those of their patrons, also their more important engraved stones; so built and arranged that neither from fire or the falling of the building, in case of fire, could there be any danger of their destruction.

THE STORE.

On the main or street floor, an elegant room, the full size of the building, elegantly fitted up with walnut furniture of an elaborate character, with rich show-cases, &c., is kept the large stock of books, stationery, pictures, fancy goods, paper hangings, law books, &c., &c., under the immediate charge of Mr. J. M. Ross, of the firm. Mr. Ross was once a teacher of renown in the city of Cincinnati, and since connecting himself with the house has taken great interest in building up a trade in school supplies of all kinds, and has found the time meanwhile to write a text-book on the local geography of Iowa, with lessons on County, State and Federal government, which has been largely introduced into the schools of the State, and should be in every one of them. A full line of school records and blanks, with school books by the cord, are kept and sold at lowest rates. Chicago wholesale prices are duplicated, so that dealers in Central and Western Iowa can save the difference in freight by buying here. For the retail trade a well selected stock of books, consisting of the best authors, the new issues as they come out, with piles of juveniles, toy books, &c., while daily orders are sent out for books, so that the firm undertakes to furnish any book published in the United States or Europe, on the shortest notice. The County Bible Society's Depository is with them, and a full line, in large quantities, of the American Bible Society's publications are kept in stock to supply the out of town trade, as well as the local demand. In addition, a large stock of family and pocket Bibles, hymn books, prayer books, albums, &c., are kept, suitable not only for ordinary use, but handsomely bound and illustrated for presentation purposes The holiday trade is an especial feature, and their handsome rooms, crowded with elegant books, richly framed pictures, and hundreds of rare articles for use or ornament, and thronged with customers, is one of the sights that no one in the city during the season fails to see. In this room, on one side, is kept a large stock of first-class pianos, organs, musical instruments, sheet music, church and Sunday School music books, &c. Any instrument desired is supplied, although the specialties are the Decker Bros., the Arion and the Hallett & Cumsten pianos, and the Jewett & Goodman and Loring & Blake organs. They are sold at lowest rates, both wholesale and retail. Parties who are not prepared to buy for cash are enabled, by the heavy capital of the concern, to buy on the monthly or quarterly payment plan.

In the back part of the store room is the office, where Mr. F. M. Mills can now, as for the last twenty years, always be found, in charge of the business department. Under his immediate eye and supervision are the book-keepers, the order and shipping clerks and the traveling agents.

LITHOGRAPHIC DEPARTMENT.

The second floor is mainly occupied by the lithographers. Here work can be seen in all stages of progress. The artist is busy with his designs, the engravers at all varieties of the art, from portraits or cattle views in crayon to the fine line-engraved vignettes and views of buildings and machinery, towns and cities, railroads and States, city, county and railroad bonds, diplomas, certificates of stock, with bank work of all kinds. In an adjoining room the transferers are at work preparing the engraved work for the printers, a long row of whom are at work on hand presses, slowly turning out the finer class of color work, and the jobs of which but few impressions are required, while the rapid rotary steam presses are rushing out at the rate of ten to fifteen thousand a day the large jobs of checks, labels, letter-heads, show cards, maps, &c., ordered in large quantities. A portion of the work on this atlas was executed by them, and does the house no discredit.

On this floor, in front, is the only space in the large building not used for the business of the firm. The Supreme Court occupies a suite of chambers, and the Supreme Court reporter has his office here for convenience of reading proof on his own work, which is constantly in progress. The State Printing Company also have their publication office in this story, so that even the space not actually used by the firm is for purposes auxilliary to their business. Ascending to the third story we find ourselves in the

COMPOSING ROOM.

Here is perhaps the busiest, though the quietest, room in the building. The large room is completely filled with stands, imposing stones, and cases and racks, filled with tons upon tons of type of every conceivable style and in size varying from that of a pin point to a foot or more in length, the stock constantly being added to as new styles are brought out by the founders, from whom monthly proof sheets of new styles of type are received. A large quantity of type is kept exclusively for stereotyping from and is not used to print from at all, which secures the sharp clear impressions from the plates, for which Mills & Co's work is so noted. This story with its army of trained and tasteful printers, among whom are several ladies, as well as the entire printing department, is under immediate charge of Mr. J. W. Mills, assisted by competent foremen, who allows nothing to pass his critical eye that is not up to his standard, which is a high one. In the same story, in front, is the

where the maps published by the firm, as well as the county and city maps they are constantly getting up for others, are colored. The delicate and harmonious tinting on their maps speaks highly for the artistic taste of the young ladies in this department.

THE FRAME ROOM

where the engravings, chromos, lithographs, photographs, etc., sold in the store below or brought in by their patrons, are set in handsome frames, also occupies a good sized room in the front of this story. Piles of mouldings of all styles line the room, and new patterns are received as fast as introduced by the manufacturers. They also supply dealers and frame makers throughout the country, at a very small advance over New York prices.

On reaching the fourth story, our ears are almost deafened by the noise of machinery of different kinds, and pounding of the most vigorous character. We are first ushered into where we soon lose ourselves amid the multitudinous piles of books of all kinds in various states of progress. Piles of sheets fresh from the press room are being hung on the lines to dry or going into boards preparatory to being dry-pressed. A dozen nimble-fingered girls are folding sheets into pages, or gathering them into books or sewing them section by section. A man at a machine is backing a pile of books, other men at other machines are swiftly trimming them, while a long row of men are putting them in leather. At the embossing press heated by steam, a man is stamping the sides of a lot of books one by one with a girl at hand laying on the gold, and at the finisher's stand, with other assistants to lay on gold, paste up the books, and put on the finishing touches, is the worthy foreman of the room. At the numbering machine a good looking young lady is putting the units, tens and thousands upon a lot of bank drafts just from the lithograph room, while another is paging a pile of Records handsomely bound in Russia, just ready to ship to some county in Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas or Dakota, or in our own State. The ruling machines are grinding away, as they have been, in season and out of season, for these many years, and at one end of the room a number of men are mounting and varnishing maps. Almost distracted by the variety and extent of the work as well as by the din, we step into an adjoining room and find the

where are made the plates for the books published by this firm, as well as those for their patrons, for whom blanks, engravings, and jobs of various kinds are also stereotyped. The process in use here is the new improved process used in the government stereotype foundry at Washington City, and which has not been introduced as yet west of Philadelphia. The superior plates produced by Mills & Co., and which have brought them considerable business from other points in our own as well as distant States, must not alone be ascribed to the superior process, but also to the first-class workmen in the department. The stereotyper must have a careful eye, a skillful hand, and good judgment as well as long practice, if he would turn out good and true work. Mills & Co. have been fortunate in this regard, in the selection of their stereotypers as they have in employees in the other departments. Having watched the workman in the process of preparing his mould, taking the impression of the type form sent to him from the printer, in filling it with the molton metal, in sawing, planing, blocking and finishing his plate, and completed our round, and after ascending the steps leading to the roof and taking a view of the finest city in Iowa, and as fine a location for one as can be seen in the Union, we descend to terra firma, surprised at the extent of their facilities and the magnitude of the business of the firm whose sketch we have written, and impressed by the enterprise, tact and good judgment shown in the conduct of their business as PUBLISHERS.

Their judgment and discrimination in the publication of books is evidenced by the fact that in the law department especially, every book they have issued has been a success. Their Code of Practice of 1860, issued in advance of the State edition was at once promptly taken up by the profession, as was their edition of the Code of 1873, so much preferred by the bar on account of its superior index and binding. Hammond's Digest, of which 1,000 copies were printed, has long been out of print. The first edition of the Iowa Justice, by Judge Conklin, though a double edition, was exhausted long ago, and since its revision under the Code of 1873, by Judge Conklin and Prof. Bissell, it has passed through two editions and is on the way to a third.

The Probate Manual, by A. N. Porter, Esq.; and the Official Guide, a treatise on county and township officers, by Hon. G. W. Fields, are now both being revised for a third edition. The first four volumes of Iowa Reports, by Withrow were published by them, and although issued when their establishment was in its infancy, they stand as among the best executed volumes of the series. While to the 38th, by Runnells, just from their press and bindery, is justly awarded the place of the best and most handsomely executed volume of the set, fully up to the standard of their work as shown in their new series of Reports, by Judge Cole, being an annotated edition of the scarce volumes of Iowa Reports, which have elicited the highest commendations from the bar, the bench and the press for the beauty of their execution as well as the merits of the author's work; showing that their exertions are not spasmodic, but the result of a determination to build up and maintain a reputation for first-class work. This well-earned reputation is further hightened by the handsome specimen of their handicraft on Judge Miller's new and revised work on Pleading and Practice under the Code, which stands as one of the best samples of law book making yet executed in America. No State in the Union has published so creditable a Geological Report as the two large and splendidly gotten up volumes containing the result of the explorations and observations of Dr. White, the State Geologist, the copyright of which belongs to Messrs. Mills & Co., to whom belongs the credit not only of the handsome printing and binding, but of the beautifully executed maps, diagrams, views, engravings, etc., with which the volumes are profusely illustrated, and which prove that our noble State is not the bare plain it was formerly represented, but that it can fairly claim a place as "Picturesque Iowa," as they will further show by plans they have in progress of preparation for a more pretentious work of this character than they have yet attempted.

Their JOB PRINTING also has for near twenty years been the standard of excellence in the West.

In the manufacture of BLANK BOOKS they claim to have better facilities than any concern in the West. One thing is certain: the books they turn out are first-class in every respect. The best paper is used, and the books bound in the most durable manner, and the most skeptical have only to look in the bookshelves and vaults of nearly every county in Iowa, and most of the banks, to verify their claim. Their labors do not seem to be merely for the day, but for the sake of building up an establishment whose reputation shall live after them, and it is safe to say that its existence for the last twenty years, and all the time under the conduct principally of the same parties, proves the fact that their labors in this regard have not been in vain. In our young State not many houses have been established and stood for twenty years. Yet this one seems to be as progressive, as public spirited and as young at heart, as its heads were twenty years ago when they came here as boys, although they are beginning to grow gray in the service, and there is not a citizen of Iowa that does not point to it with pride as a representative establishment, and one by which the State is best known abroad; indeed for years Des Moines was best known not only in Iowa, but in the States and Territories west as the headquarters of the enterprising and aggressive firm of Mills & Co. Almost the only trade for the town brought from a distance was through its agents. It was the largest customer in the State to the United States Express Co. and to the postoffice, as it probably is to-day in the city to both of them. Packages being constantly received and shipped to and from all parts of the United States, and their annual postage bill running up into the thousands.

To show the extent of the publishing business of the firm, we intended if space had permitted, to add here, to close this sketch, a Catalogue of their principal publications, which contains over 75 volumes of current works, mostly Law, a valuable addition to which has recently been made, by the purchase of the copyrights and plates of the sixteen volumes of Iowa Reports, by Stiles, at a cost of about ten thousand dollars, thus with their editions of Cole's and Runnells' Reports vesting the proprietorship of nearly the entire set of Iowa Reports in them. Their catalogue also includes quite a list of sheet music of their own publication; over one thousand legal and official blanks, and a series of valuable State, City and County Maps, and a complete set of School District Records, Blanks, etc. They will cheerfully send catalogues and price lists of their publications, and give prices for any goods in their line, or estimates for any job of work however large or small, in any of their departments. They do not allow themselves to be undersold, and take a pride in being able to duplicate Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, or even New York or Philadelphia prices on any of their specialties.

(e) The returns of 1850 for Contra Costa and Santa Clara were lost on the way to the Census Office, and those for San Francisco were destroyed by fire. The corrected State census of 1852 gives the population of these three counties as follows: Contra Costa, 2,786; San Francisco, 36,154; and Santa Clara, 6,764; and gives the total population of the State (save El Dorado, not returned) at 215,122. El Dorado was estimated at 40,000, which would make the total probable population at that date 255,122. (Vide Doc. No. 14, Appendix to Senate Journal, 4th session Legislature of California.)

(a) It will be observed that the several classes of New Castle County (white, free colored, and slave) exceed the total of the county here given by 2. The error comes from the original return of the Marshal in respect to this county. It is impossible to ascertain by reference to any printed or written document, whether the error is in the items or the totals. The totals of the county and of the State have, therefore, been allowed to stand as they were printed in the official census of 1790. In Table I the items have been assumed to be correct, and the totals, 19,698 and 58,096, have been taken to be the correct totals of the County and of the State.

NOTES ON AREAS.—(a) The land surface of the United States, 3,603,884 square miles, when increased by the water surface of the great lakes and rivers, brings the total area of the United States to 4,000,000 square miles.

(b) The increase of the total area of the United States at 1860 over 1850 represents that territory acquired from Mexico known as the Gadsden purchase. The increase of the area at 1870 over 1860 expresses the acquisition of Alaska.

(c) The area of the Indian country at each census includes the area of the unorganized territory which is west of that country.

NOTES ON FAMILIES AND DWELLINGS.—(d) At the censuses of 1860 and 1850, the families and dwellings of the free population only were returned. Hence the computations in the above table for those censuses respecting persons to a family or to a dwelling have been made on the basis of the free population. The true number of families in the United States at 1860 may be approximated by adding to the total families in the table 748,818, being the families of the slaves, calculated at the average persons (5.28) to a family for the free population of the United States at that census. The number of families thus becomes 5,959,752. By the same process, the families at 1850 become 4,174,555. The dwellings increased for the slaves respectively, at the rate of one dwelling to six slaves (the estimate adopted at 1850), become, for 1860, 5,628,652, and, for 1850, 3,896,389.

(e) The families and persons to a family for Utah, at 1860, have been obtained by combining the families and population of Utah and Nevada published separately in the report of the Eighth Census. Nevada was not made a Territory until the year 1861.

REMARKS.

The Statistics of Churches contained in the foregoing tables are believed to be substantially exact, and to present a just view of the organization of the several religious denominations found within the United States and of the accommodation for public worship afforded by each.

It was not to be expected or desired that the account taken in the census of the churches of the country should, in all cases, agree with the statements put forth by religious denominations through their respective official organs. The census has its own proper point of view, and applies, in some respects, different tests from those known to the compilers of year-books or registers.

A church to deserve notice in the census must have something of the character of an institution. It must be known in the community in which it is located. There must be something permanent and tangible to substantiate its title to recognition. No one test, it is true, can be devised that will apply in all cases, yet, in the entire absence of tests, the statistics of the census will be overlaid with fictitious returns to such an extent as to produce the effect of absolute falsehood. It will not do to say that a church without a church-building of its own is, therefore, not a church; that a church without a pastor is not a church; nor even that a church without membership is not a church. There are churches properly cognizable in the census which are without edifices and pastors, and, in rare instances, without a professed membership. Something makes them churches in spite of all their deficiencies. They are known and recognized in the community as churches, and are properly to be returned as such in the census.

On the other hand, there are hundreds of churches borne on the rolls of religious sects having both a legal title to an edifice and a nominal membership, which never gather a congregation together, support no ministry, and conduct none of the services of religion.

Some of the larger religious denominations, either in consequence of their peculiar organization or by reason of special efforts, maintain a careful system of reports and returns, and the statistics of such denominations are accordingly entitled to great consideration.

METHODIST.

Foremost among these is the Methodist Church, which, by reason of its episcopal form of government and its scheme of changing periodically the pastors of churches, is always in possession, as nearly as it would be possible to effect, of the true condition of its organization in all parts of the country to a late date. Dead churches are not allowed to encumber its rolls, and consequently the list of its several branches present their exact strength "for duty." This denomination, therefore, affords a high test of the accuracy of the returns of the census; and, notwithstanding that it presents as much difficulty in the enumeration as any other, the general correspondence between the statements embodied in the minutes of the annual conferences of the principal branches of the church, after making allowance for the known strength of certain minor branches which do not publish official returns, and the statistics of the denomination as given in the census, is, taking all the States of the Union together, very decided. The slight differences that exist are sufficiently explained by differences between the dates of the returns and by different rules of construction and classification which would naturally be adopted in doubtful cases by parties acting independently of each other.

There are other denominations, one or two, notably the Baptist, of great importance, in which an absence of central control in the government of the churches, and the want of a thorough system of reports and returns, deprive church statistics of value. It is in respect to these, as a rule, that the discrepancies between the claims of the denomination and the results of the census are greatest. In all such cases full and searching inquiry has been made; the recognized authorities of the churches interested have been freely consulted; and assistant marshals have been called on to explain the discrepancy, and to review their own statements. Hundreds of letters have been written from the Census Office on this subject; thousands of churches have been inquired for; and where differences, after all has been done, still exist, it only remains to be said that if this or that denomination has as many churches as it claims, the agents of the census have not been able to find them.

An analysis of the reports of certain religious denominations, however, is sufficient to explain the discrepancies to the vindication of the census, without further investigation. It is generally found that the aggregate reported by the authorities of the denomination is made up of two classes: first, of churches from which reports have been received up to a recent date, showing an actual organization and an active membership, with church accommodation and a ministry; and second, of churches, often more numerous, which are deficient in one or all of these respects, in degrees ranging from partial or temporary deprivation to total and habitual destitution. In such cases, the statistics accompanying almost invariably cut in between the highest and lowest figures of the denomination; take in all the churches that are fully officered, organized and equipped, and add to this number such of the second class as, in spite of deficiencies, answer to the true definition of a church from the point of view of the census, viz., are institutions in the community known and recognized.

BAPTIST.

The discrepancies between the returns of the census and the statistics of the church are greatest in the case of the Baptists.

The census of 1860 showed 11,221 "churches."

The census of 1870 shows 14,474 church organizations; the increase in the decade being certainly as large as could have been expected. The statistics of the church, however, purport to show 17,535 churches in 1870 in the territory covered by the operations of the census, a difference against the census of 3,061. But reference to the statistics of the same church show that in 1869 only 14,084 churches were claimed, exclusive of the States of Delaware and Rhode Island, the District of Columbia, and certain Territories; adding in the number claimed in 1870 for the States and Territories not reported in 1869, to wit, 91, we have as the total churches in 1869, 14,175 or 299 less than the census.

If, therefore, the statement of 17,535 churches for 1870 is correct, there must have been a clear addition of 3,360 in the single year intervening, which would be considerably more than the entire addition claimed for the nine years previous (2,954), which is wholly unreasonable and incredible.

Proceeding, however to analyze the aggregate of 17,535, we find that from only 12,600 churches were reports received during the year from which the statement is made up. For 3,273 the figures were taken from the report of the year previous, in the absence of any later advices; and for 1,662 more, estimates had to be made, in the absence even of returns a year old.

It will be seen here, as has been above indicated, that the census cuts in between the highest claim of the denomination and the number for which positive data can be shown. And in this the census conforms in an eminent degree to the reason of the case, inasmuch as it must be that many of the churches unreported are still in existence, possessing sufficient activity to justify their return by the assistant marshals, while many undoubtedly have, in the natural course of things, ceased to keep up even a form of life.

Going down from the total of the United States to the total for States (still within the same denomination), we find an even clearer explanation of the same facts. The discrepancies are mainly in the Southern States, where the conditions of society, especially among the freedmen, are such as would account for even larger differences than exist. In Alabama the census reports but 786; the church statistics claim 1,054; but from only 489 of these were reports actually received during the year for which the returns were made up; 445 were taken from the report the year previous, and 120 were obtained purely by estimate. In Arkansas the census reports 463; the church statistics claim 539; but only 122 of these were obtained from the reports of the year 1870; 235 were taken from the report of 1869, and 182 were obtained by estimate. In North Carolina the census reports 951; the church statistics claim 1,235; but of these only 587 are obtained from reports of the year, 228 from reports of the year previous, and 420 by estimate. In Georgia the census reports 1,364; the church statistics claim 1,946; but in 1869 only 1,478 were claimed, while the minutes of the State Baptist Convention, held at Cartersville, April 21 and 24, 1871, show but 1,738, included in which are 225 taken from the minutes of 1869, 59 taken from the minutes of 1868, and 250 taken from the minutes of conventions held before the war. The comparison might be carried through all the Southern States with much the same results.

The least impartial consideration of the above facts must convince any one that in the aggregates of this denomination, in the Southern States especially, are included large numbers of congregations "in the bush," properly, it may be, to be reported from a denominational point of view, but hardly to be returned in the census, while there are also included many churches which have been destroyed by the violence of war, or have been merged with other organizations of the same church, or have fallen into hopeless decay, in the natural course of human institutions.

The only one of the Southern States where comparison between the statistics of the census and those of the church, and an analysis of the latter according to the plan above pursued, would induce the belief that the returns of the census, as between the two, were in fault, is the State of Texas, where the conditions attending the recent enumeration were so unfavorable, so almost hopeless, as to prevent the collection of social statistics in any degree satisfactory to the Census Office. The same admission of a failure to fully return the Baptist denomination might seem, at first glance, to be required (though in nothing like the same degree) in respect to the State of Virginia; but a comparison of the results in this State with those for West Virginia, establishes the soundness of the statistics of the two States taken together, and justifies the suggestion that the officers charged with the compilation of these statements for denominational purposes have, not unnaturally, failed to divide the churches accurately between the old and the new State.

CONGREGATIONAL.

In respect to the Congregational Church, again, the difference between the statistics of the census and those of the denominational organs is decided, though by no means so extreme, as this denomination has never extended its agencies southward with any considerable success. The denomination claims 3,121; the census allows 2,887. In this case the difference is partially accounted for (probably to the extent of between 50 and 60) by the later date (within the same year) of the statistics of the denomination. The remaining difference is explained by such facts as those contained in the "Annual Statistics of the Congregational Quarterly for January, 1871. Nine hundred and three churches only are there stated to have settled pastors; 1,438 have "acting pastors;" 129 are supplied by licentiates and ministers of other denominations; and 651 are "vacant." The differences in respect to this denomination are found mainly at the West, where the large number of churches without either a stated ministry or a "supply," and the large number, also (often the same churches), without edifices of their own, afford ample scope for the operation of different rules of construction as to what constitutes a church for census purposes.

The most important discrepancy between the statistics of the denomination and those of the census, within any of the Eastern States, is in the State of Pennsylvania, where the agents of the census report 40 church organizations. The Congregational Quarterly claims 70; 6 only, however, having settled pastors, 31 having "acting pastors," and 33 being "vacant." In the case of 13 of the churches thus reported by the denomination, the Census Office received positive information from the postmasters of the towns and villages where they were said to be severally located that no such churches were in existance. Of the 17 remaining to be accounted for, the Census Office has been able to obtain no information of any kind through correspondence.

In Kentucky, again, the Quarterly claims three churches. The returns of the census show none; but in response to inquiries addressed to the pastors of two of the churches claimed by the Quarterly, the Superintendent was informed that the churches should be classed, one as "Christian" and the other as "Baptist." The third is stated by the Quarterly to be located at "Camp Nelson," but, as there is neither town nor post-office by that name in the State of Kentucky, the inquiry could not be prosecuted. It may be assumed, however, that the statement of a church at that place is founded upon a tradition of some local and temporary organization effected during the war at the large and important camp then formed there.

In Arkansas the Quarterly reports two churches—the census none. For only one, however, is the post-office address given by the Quarterly; and a letter addressed to the pastor of this church was returned to the Census Office by the postmaster, with the information that no church of the denomination existed in that vicinity. In respect to the other (which the Quarterly admits to be without even a "supply"), no inquiry could be instituted, for the reason that no address was given. Instances of this character could be multiplied, but the foregoing will suffice.

It is not doubted that in some cases confusion has arisen in returning the three denominations known in the following tables as Congregational, Unitarian, and Universalist, on account of the common use in some sections, and to a limited extent, of the word "Congregational," as expressing merely the form of church government, without reference to distinctions of theological belief.

UNIVERSALIST.

The denomination last mentioned by name is also reported much below the number claimed by the official organs, by reason probably of the fact that this denomination has a larger proportion of congregations without permanent pastors than any other. For example: for the 16 Universalist churches reported in Missouri, only 1 pastor is, according to the New Covenant (a denominational organ) of February 12, 1870, wholly devoted to the ministry.

Of the 13 Universalist churches reported by the denominational Register and Almanac for 1871 as located in Kansas, only 5 claim to have the use of a church edifice; and of these two are known as "Union." The marshal of the district reports that he can only locate 1.

The discrepancies between the church statistics and the returns of the census in the case of the denominations hitherto specifically referred to, are, as will be seen above, susceptible of explanation.

UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST.

But the discrepancies which exist between the claims of the denomination and the statements of the census in respect to the church known as United Brethren in Christ, are wholly inexplicable, except upon an assumption of radical and total vice in the statistics of the church.

The denomination claims 3,753 church organizations. The census allows 1,445.

If the discrepancy were wholly or mainly confined to one or two States, it might seem reasonable to charge it to omissions on the part of the agents of the census. But a comparison of the figures of the census with a statement prepared by the agent of the United Brethren Publishing House, at Dayton, Ohio (the correctness of the statement being vouched for by one of the bishops of the church), shows that the claims of the denomination so greatly exceed the figures of the census in every State in which it exists in any considerable strength, as to render it in the highest degree improbable, if not morally impossible, that the differences arise from the uniform negligence of the agents of the census in respect to this single church.

It is undoubtedly true that the erroneous application in some sections, and to a limited extent, of the name "German Methodists," would explain the occasional omission of societies properly belonging to this denomination; but the effect of this cause is not believed to have been considerable at the present census.

Something, also, must be allowed here—more, perhaps, than with denominations generally—for the effect of differing rules of construction as to what constitutes a church, according as the point of view of the denomination, or that of the census, is taken, in dealing with congregations occasionally gathered in school-houses or in private dwellings.

But after all reasonable allowance on these several accounts has been made, the Superintendent is compelled, from a careful examination of the subject, involving an extensive correspondence with the agents of the census, as well as with the officers of the church in question, to conclude that the denominational statistics are radically defective. In addition to the decided presumption in favor of the general correctness of the work of the sworn officers of the Government, to which nothing but assertion has been opposed by the representatives of the denomination, this conclusion is strongly supported by two considerations:

First. That the authorities of the denomination admit that they are unable to locate the churches they claim by towns or even by counties. Had such information been furnished, the investigation into the discrepancies existing would not have been dropped until the whole body of such differences had been canvassed by the Census Office, at whatever expense of time and labor. But the absence of anything approaching specific information regarding the location of these churches not only renders it impossible satisfactorily to determine the question at issue, but casts the greatest doubt upon the authority of the denominational statements.

Second. That the number of church organizations claimed by the authorities of the denomination bears an extraordinary and wholly unprecedented relation to the number of communicants reported. The Baptists average 80 communicants to a church organization; the Methodist Episcopal, 90; the Presbyterians (North), 98; the Reformed Church in America, 132—the highest average attained; the Evangelical Association, 74—the lowest. But the official organs of the United Brethren in Christ claim 3,753 churches with only 116 523 communicants, or an average of only 31 to a church. When it is considered that nearly if not quite two-thirds of the communicants of churches are, as a rule, women and minor children, we shall have as an average but 10 to 12 communicants among the adult males bearing the burden of the support of a church of this denomination—a most improbable supposition. But if we assume for the church an average number of communicants equal to that shown by the church having, of all those whose statistics on this subject are available, the smallest number, namely, the Evangelical Association, 74 members, we should have for the 116,523 communicants of the United Brethren in Christ, 1,575 churches, or only 180 in excess of the census. If, on the other hand, we assume for the denomination the average of the Reformed Church in America, viz., 132 communicants, we should have but 883 churches, or 562 below the census. If, again, we assume for the calculation the average of either the Baptist or the Methodist Episcopal Church, we should have a result in the first instance almost exactly coinciding with that exhibited in the table, and in the second falling considerably below the number actually allowed by the census to the church under consideration.

CHRISTIAN, AND DISCIPLES OF CHRIST.

In respect to two denominations, it is admitted that the census fails to make a discrimination required by the facts of the case. From causes, the remedy for which it was not within the power of this office to apply, it became necessary to combine the statistics of the denominations known severally as "Christian" and "Disciples of Christ." The members of the latter denomination, much the stronger of the two, are so frequently termed "Christians," indeed so commonly call themselves by that name, that persons who had not made a study of the subject might readily conclude that the denominations were one and the same, whereas they are, in fact, distinct in official name and style, in organization, and in doctrine.

As an example, not only of the confusion in the popular mind respecting these two churches, but also of the negligence of the officers and members of the several churches in characterizing their own organization and services, it may be mentioned that there is a church belonging to the "Disciples of Christ," within the City of Washington, which is not only commonly, and, indeed, universally spoken of as the "Christian Church," but whose Sunday services are habitually advertised by its own officers in the public prints as those of the "Christian Church," while the edifice in which the congregation worships is inscribed, in conspicuous letters, "Christian Church." It would be wonderful, indeed, when the error is thus daily made by those who should be most interested in maintaining the individuality of the two denominations, if the agents of the census had been found to have preserved the distinction.

Had each or either of these denominations been mainly confined to a distinct section of the Union, special efforts might have resulted in an approximate classification of the data furnished by the assistant marshals. But, in view of the fact that both bodies have their greatest strength in the same States, and oftentimes in the same quarter of the same State, and in view also of the frankly acknowledged inability of the officials of each denomination to whom application for assistance was made to render any practical aid, it was deemed best to follow the precedent established in 1850 and 1860 of merging the two denominations under a single title.

The results here given are believed to present a fair statement of the combined strength of the two denominations.

One of the leading divines of the "Christians" gives the following estimate for that denomination as a whole in the United States, in answer to the inquiries of the Census Office, viz: church organizations, 1,100; church edifices, 1,050; church accommodation, 100,000; value of church property, $735,000.

NOTE.—It will be noticed in the columns of the above table devoted to the census of 1860, that the number of farms of each specified class in the United States and in every State and Territory except Nevada, when added, fail to produce the total number of farms found in a previous column of the table. These discrepancies appear without explanation on pages 221 and 222 of the volume on Agriculture of the census of 1860.
